Dear Sara,
I have really enjoyed being in your classes this year. Congratulations on all of your achievements and may you continue to succeed.

Love,

Sara,
I'm so glad we're friends, and to such a great way to get that way too! ~~PJZ~~ (sorry about that, but you know what I mean) This summer you

Faithful and true-hearted,
 Let us boost for our old high.
 We revere her and defend her,
 As her colors proudly fly.
 We will stand for her united;
 Of her deeds we'll proudly tell.
 Her colors streaming,
 Glad faces beaming,
 So here's a cheer for her,
 That we all love so well.

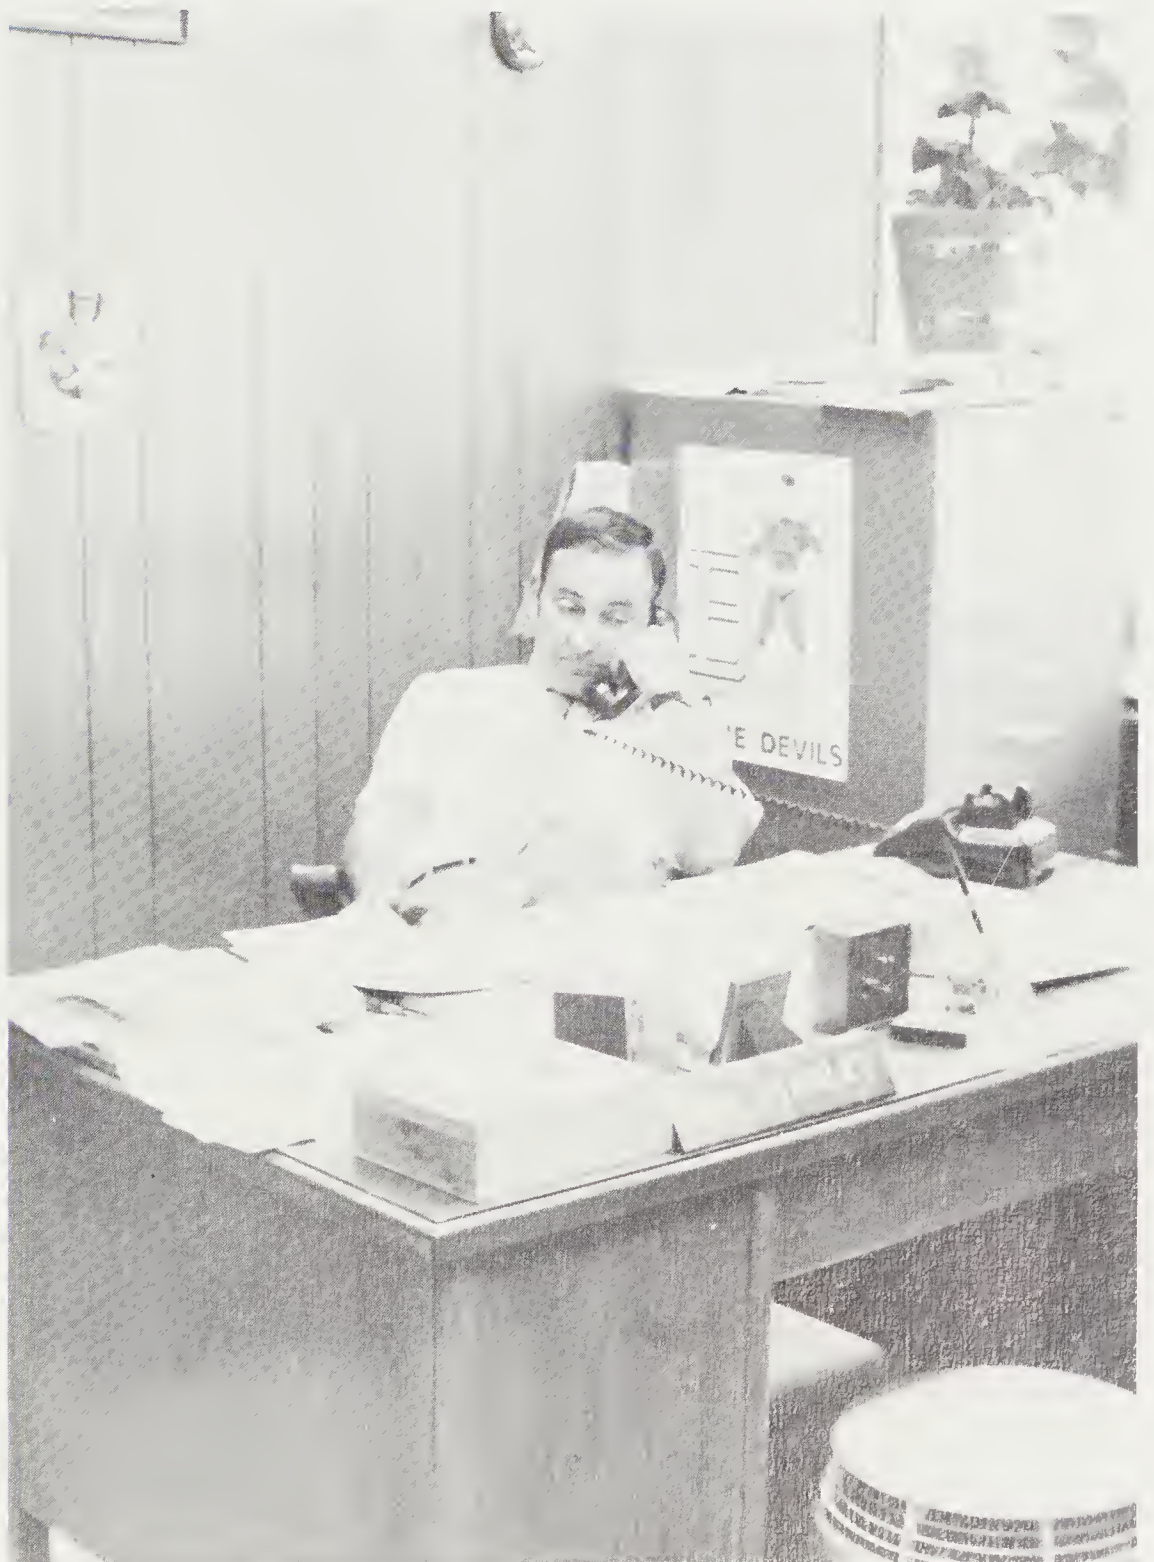

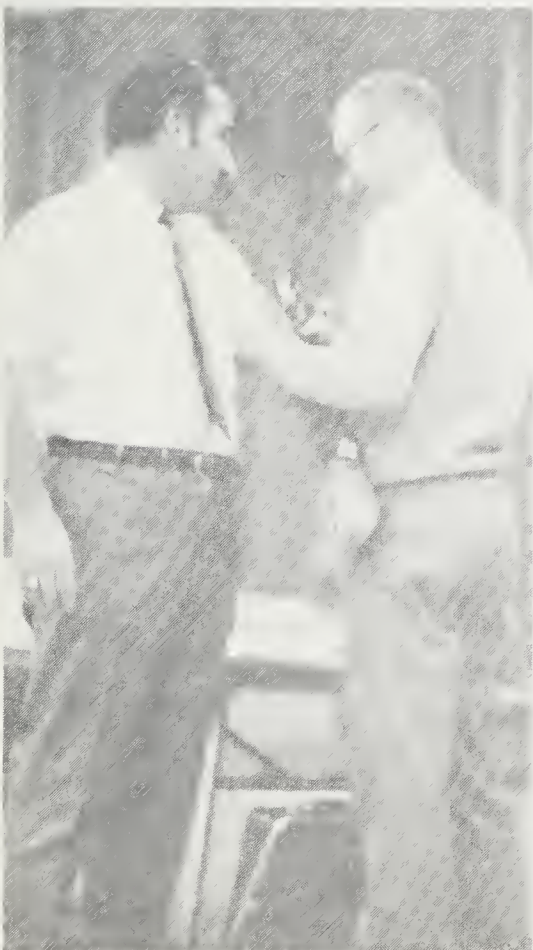

Joyous and ever loyal,
 Let us boost for our old high.
 Let every heart sing,
 Let every voice ring;
 There's no time to grieve or sigh.
 It's ever onward our course pursuing.
 May defeat ne'er our ardor cool,
 But united we will boost for Our Brevard High School.

In gratitude to a great leader

Great leaders are always the center of controversy. Our principal proved himself to be a fine leader, for though not everyone agreed with his ideas, no one could deny that he always strove to make Brevard High the best school anywhere.

This man came to Brevard High as head football coach and led the team to a conference championship. Since then, he has shown his ability to lead and to work well with the student body. Always looking for a way to change things for the better, our principal made this our school and one of which we could be proud.

In gratitude for the time and energy he has devoted to make our school the finest anywhere, we dedicate the 1971 Brevardier to Mr. William Stanley.

Administration achieves

Mr. Standley, in his fourth year at Brevard, headed the administrative staff of the school in another year of progress. Assisted by Coach Ed Emory and Mrs. Holliday, Mr. Stanley was able to work with school personnel, students, and the community in improving our school situation.

Clerical work was done with efficiency by the office staff. Mrs. Bryson and Mrs. Dotson managed many important functions ranging from financial matters to permanent records.

The guidance department presented several programs for non-club members during organization meeting periods.

Guidance counselors, Mrs. Cope, Mrs. Whitmire, and Mrs. Quick, discuss plans for administering college boards to upperclassmen.

Wanda Johnstone reflects upon her office duties and responsibilities.

Jobs of every type are completed by Mrs. Bryson and Mrs. Dotson.

Mr. Corbin applies his signature to an important document as Mr. Case, Mrs. Gordon, and Mrs. Olsen look on.

Staff members display

Mrs. Neal, our cafeteria manager, checks the ledger for financial discrepancies.

Performing a wide variety of laborious tasks, the cafeteria and janitorial staffs helped to keep our school functioning smoothly. In carrying out their assigned missions these two groups made Brevard High a little easier to come to each morning.

Supervised as in past years by Mrs. Bert Neal, the lunchroom ladies daily prepared substantial meals for many of our students. These lunches were carefully planned by students and cafeteria workers every three months so that variety came with nutrition all year long. Every school day started early for this crew since their undertaking was an enormous one. However, they were aided by several hard working students from the resource learning classes and the study halls throughout the year.

The Janitors managed to keep our halls and grounds fairly clean despite the frequently untidy habits of some 1200 students. Their hard work was well appreciated by those of us who traveled over the school campus and through its halls during the year.

Students excel

BHS once again had a large number of students receiving honors, awards, and scholarships.

Among the various honors bestowed upon students were those academic awards given to deserving seniors and underclassmen. Recognition also was given to students well-rounded in civic and school affairs and those who possessed outstanding qualities of citizenship and leadership. Other awards were presented on the basis of mental cultivation, athletic achievement, and outstanding ability in music. In addition to the various honors and awards, were the eagerly sought after scholarships.

Gary Nelson is the recipient of a full scholarship to U.N.C. at Chapel Hill.

Rick Bohan is a finalist for the National Merit Scholarship.

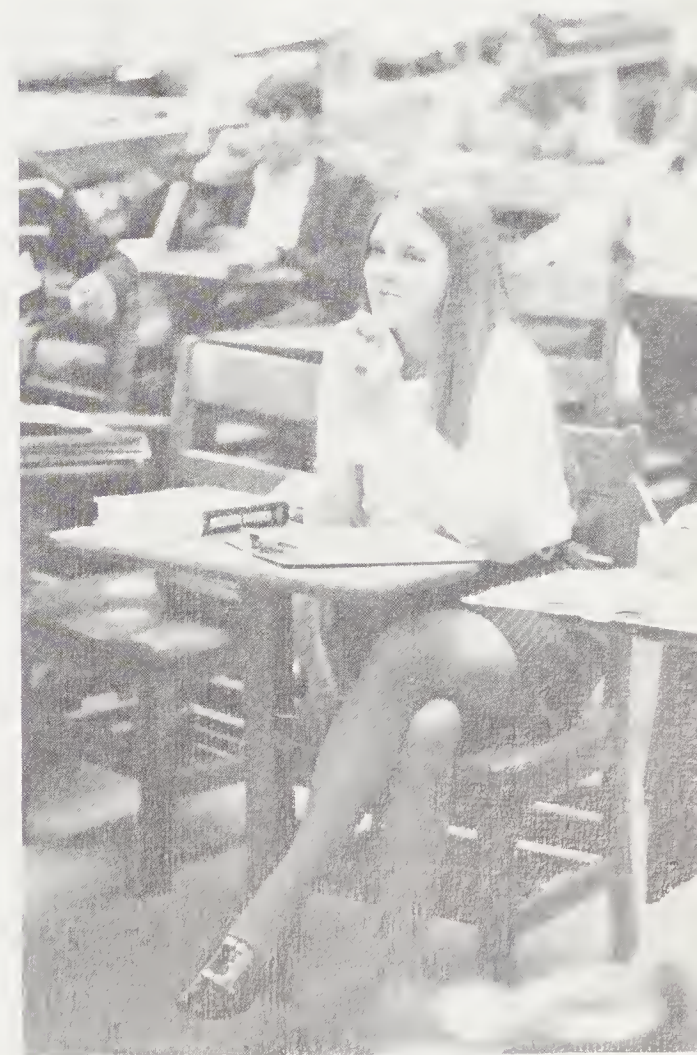

Patty Ryan and Mary Weiss are nominated for the Sally Southall Cotton Scholarship by the Book and Plate and Brevard Junior Women's Clubs.

Charles Carr and Eagle Moss will attend Western Carolina University on football scholarships.

Monte Echols is the winner of the Elk's Club Scholarship and a twenty-five dollar bond on the basis of his leadership qualities.

Lou Whicker is the nominee for the Katherine Reynolds Scholarship.

Amidst the "Garden of Love"

Centered around the theme of "Garden of Love" was the 1971 Sweetheart Ball. In keeping with the theme, baskets of flowers, multi-colored floral scenery, and a fountain created the effects of a spring garden. Spending hours of preparation and hard work, the Booster Club, who sponsored the event, produced a very successful dance.

Beauties emerge from "Castle of Dreams"

With "Castle of Dreams" as its theme and Lou Whicker, editor, as mistress of ceremonies, the annual staff presented the 1971 Miss Brevardier Pageant. gaye

Competing for the titles of Miss Brevardier and her court were thirty-six lovely contestants. These finalists had been chosen by the student body. From these representatives, four seniors, three juniors, two sophomores and one freshman were selected by five professional judges.

Escorting the ladies were Rick Bohan, John Boggs, and John Mehaffey. Music was provided by Linda Gail Brown. The castle, constructed by Mr. Osborne and his masonry classes, made the 1971 Miss Brevardier Pageant one of the most striking and appealing presentations ever held.

Beauty contestants: (Front row) S. Sitton, A. Paxton, L. Mitchell, W. Johnstone, R. Grasty, B. Bennett. (Second row) J. Summey, R. Patterson, M. McGibboney, M. Holliday, L. Carpenter, A. McClure. (Third row) P. Landon, S. Hemphill, K. Case, J. Patterson, L. Leinster, C. Bryant.

How Mrs. Baker, department head, can keep smiling after a day of freshmen is a mystery to many.

classes savor Shakespeare

Mrs. Bowden believes original teaching methods are important to learning.

Dramatizations were an integral part of Sophomore English. Plays by several authors were enacted, including Julius Caesar.

Public speaking was a new experience for most sophomores. Talks were made in an attempt to inform, to persuade, and to entertain the listener. The limit on most speeches was three minutes, but that can be an eternity as some sophomores found out.

Poems, short stories, and themes were produced in the writing phase of Sophomores' English.

Study of more advanced grammatical laws such as the comma-placement rules and guides concerning verbs and nouns found their way into English II.

Sampling every type of literature, freshmen explored the realms of reading. Highlighting the year's study was Great Expectations, the tragedy of Romeo and Juliet, short stories by various authors and informative essays. Along the lines of creative writing, the freshmen learned how to compose and organize his thoughts then record them in a way that is interesting and informative to the reader.

Punctuation, capitalization, and spelling were some of the many facets of grammar that were elaborated upon in Freshmen English.

Sophomores have access to many different types of books.

Mrs. Medford's glee is unmistakable as she reads a student's composition to the class.

English

Juniors correlate history with literature

From the earliest excuses for literature to masterpieces by Americans, juniors read and discussed their heritage of literature. Since a common trait of American writers is to write about the troubles of man, the stories, poems, essays, journals, and novels studied were still relevant.

Solving their writing problems was a major difficulty for creative juniors. Composition assignments seemed to stretch into infinity but the end result was an accomplished goal for the writer. The finished product was something the author could be proud of. Previously learned grammar was utilized in this writing.

Early in the day, Mrs. Ideker always thinks it is worth the trouble, that is until after third and fifth period.

John Bohan twirls his way through Advanced Junior English.

Mrs. Lathrop seems to think that the top ten students in fifth period may be increased by adding Gary Sitton to the list.

English Lit provides Seniors with diversity

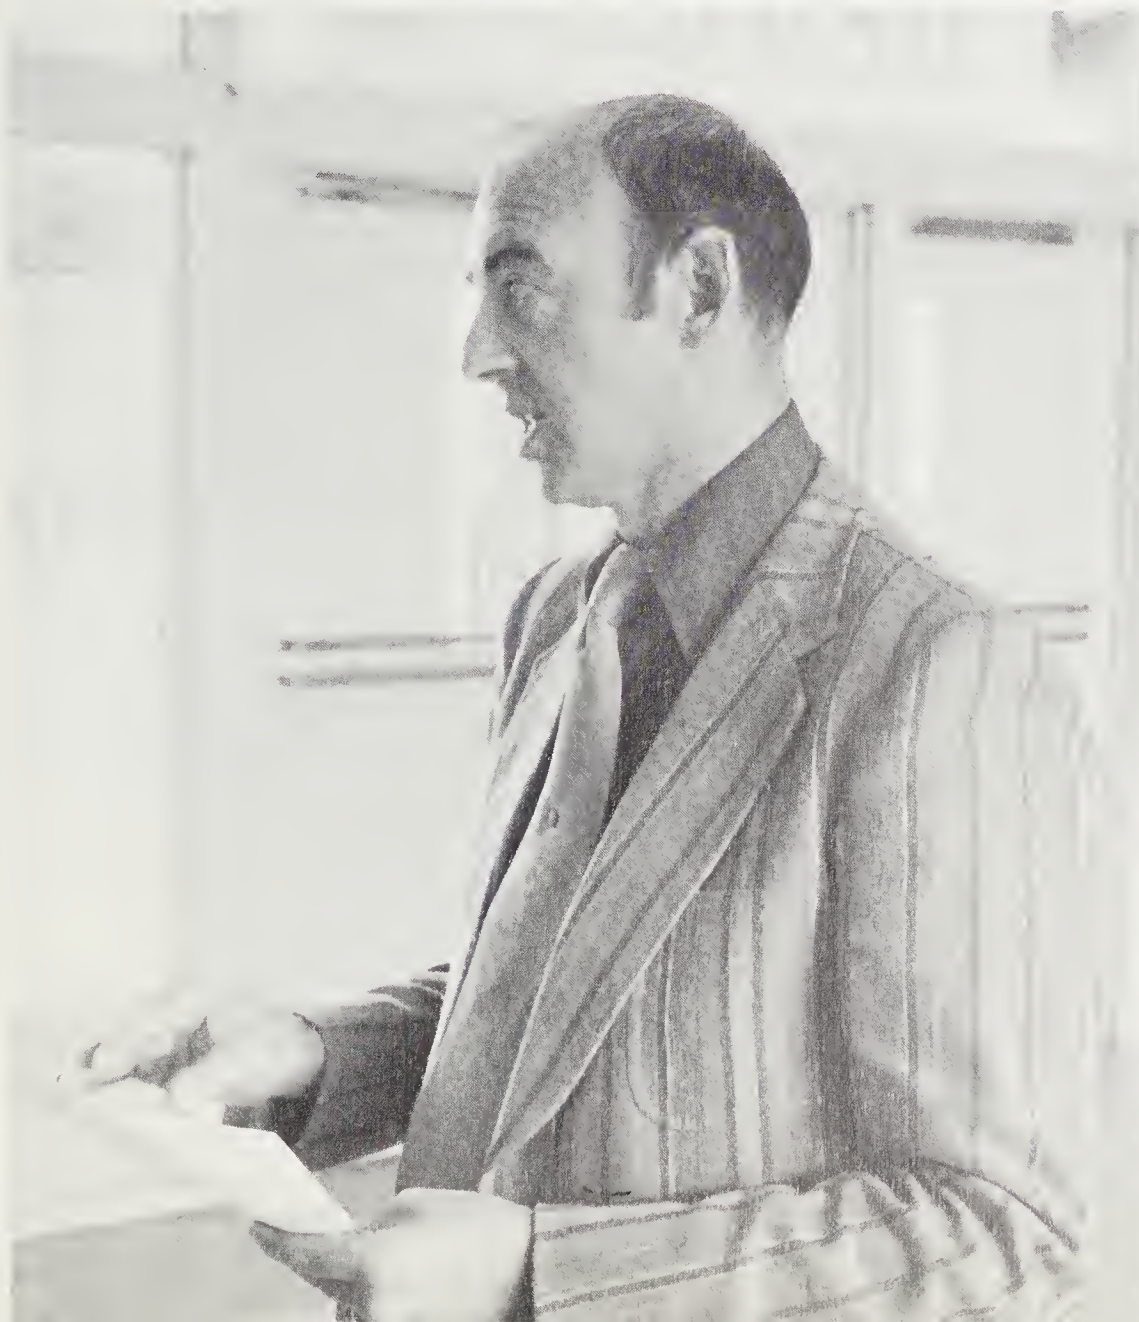

Lapsing into a Hamlet-like melancholy, John Sterk meditates about his own identity.

Senior English opened doors to new fields in literature for all upper-classmen. Shakespeare's plays, Macbeth and Hamlet were studied in the advanced classes while other groups came to know Othello. In the latter half of the year, students read the works of many predominant British authors. Of course memorization of excerpts from most readings, especially those of Shakespeare, was assigned.

Investigation into the nuances of grammar was not left out, either. Seniors were often tested on their abilities of verb and noun usage as well as sentence structure.

Together, these studies served to make Seniors more aware of the literature of Britain and helped them to be well-rounded in the practical aspects of English in general.

Mr. Henson explains the correct procedure for footnoting research papers.

BHS mathematicians study

Mathematics is perhaps the most complete of all universal languages. It is the foundation of virtually every science and technology we have today.

To prepare students for life in such a number-oriented world, Brevard High offered a wide selection of math and arithmetic courses.

General and Consumer Math taught pupils fundamentals of applied arithmetic. Algebra I started the students out on the road to higher math. Plane Geometry was a course in abstract ideas. It helped students to approach a problem scientifically, to think things through and reach a reasonable conclusion. Algebra II was a continuation of Algebra I. For the brave students, Algebra III offered a tremendous challenge. Trig and Calculus was the climax of all the years and studies of math.

Math is only a language of symbols. Our teachers were the keys to this language and our students were the interpreters.

Working at the board is utilized in Mrs. Abercrombie's room for better comprehension purposes.

Individual help is a must in math, as Mrs. Bohan well knows.

Mrs. Andrews is engaged in a talk about the complex number system.

Slide rules, burners and equations:

Physical science provided for freshmen a basic study of the "why's" and "how's" of our world and universe. Students explored such fields as elemental properties, atomic behavior and astronomic events in their course of learning.

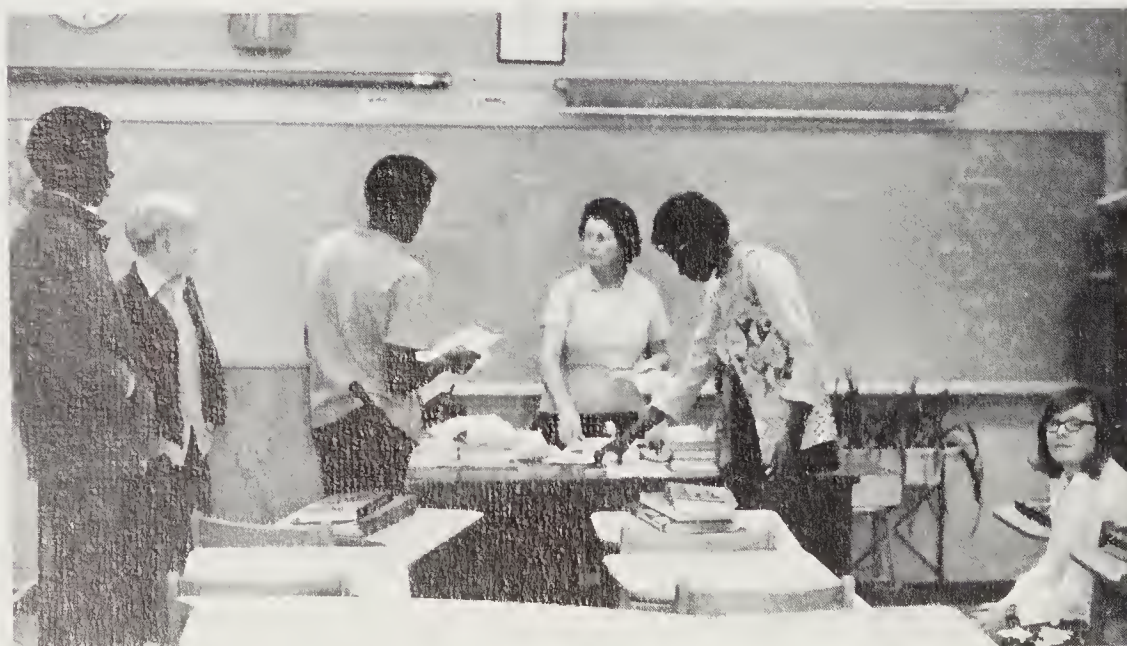

Several classes began to use the fundamental principles of the slide rule in order to aid them in future sciences courses.

the life of a Scientist

If pressure is exerted on chair A, bottle B will break causing chair to fall to floor C.

The universe we live in is well-organized and Chemistry students learned just how complex this organization has become.

Continual experimentation went a long way in teaching juniors and seniors the many facets of Chemistry. Research on this actual participation level helped greatly in getting the novice scientists to understand basic laws and properties.

After data was taken, it was necessary for calculation to be made before a conclusion could be drawn. With the help of regular problem solving, Coach Deal, and his lectures, this matter was simplified somewhat for most pupils.

As each trial came to a close, every student could be proud that he had used his own ideas and work as a tool of knowledge.

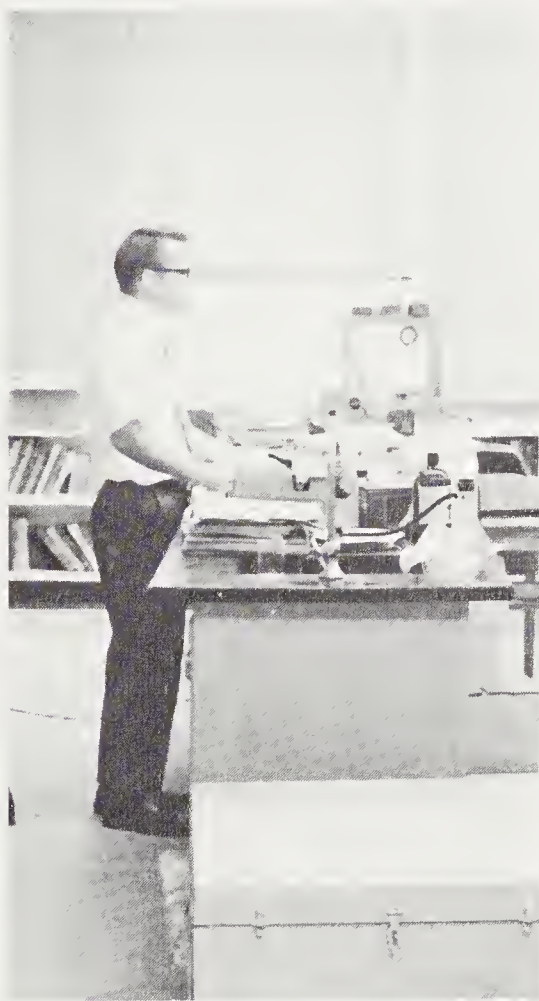

Physics, though taught in the same way as Chemistry, gave Seniors a fresh insight into basic and complex properties of motion, light, and energy.

The first part of the year was taken up largely by research in motions and dynamics. Experiments considered such things as momentum, kinetic energy and rotary motion.

As the holiday season approached students came to understand some of the properties of the reflection.

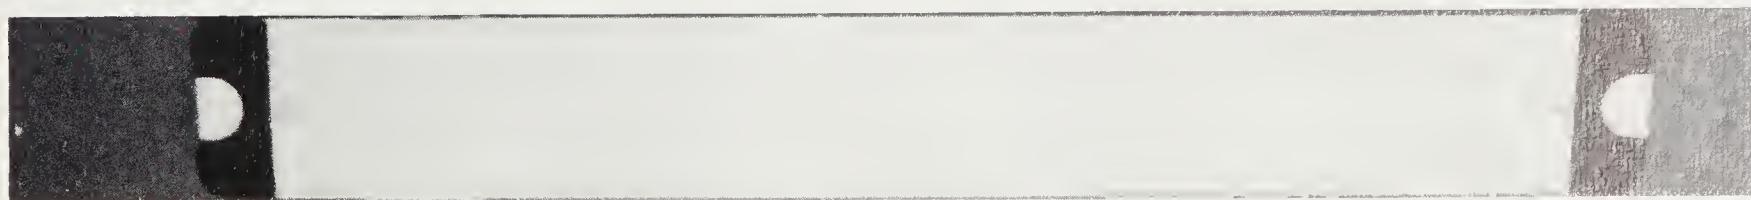

Coach Deal zapped too many times.

Cheryl Camp wonders, "Can that answer be correct?"

Zoology—Botany: a new

Zoology and Botany, two new science courses, offered students an opportunity to study life in an ecological approach. Past and present development of the effects of man upon animal life were among the various subjects of class discussion.

Botany familiarized students with plants, their growth in the environment and their importance to man. Field trips were made to observe and gather specimens on the roadside and at the Botanical Garden in Asheville. During summer and fall students collected native flowers, leaves, and seeds. Mounted in notebooks, these specimens became useful in further study.

Coach Williams discusses the characteristics of arthropods.

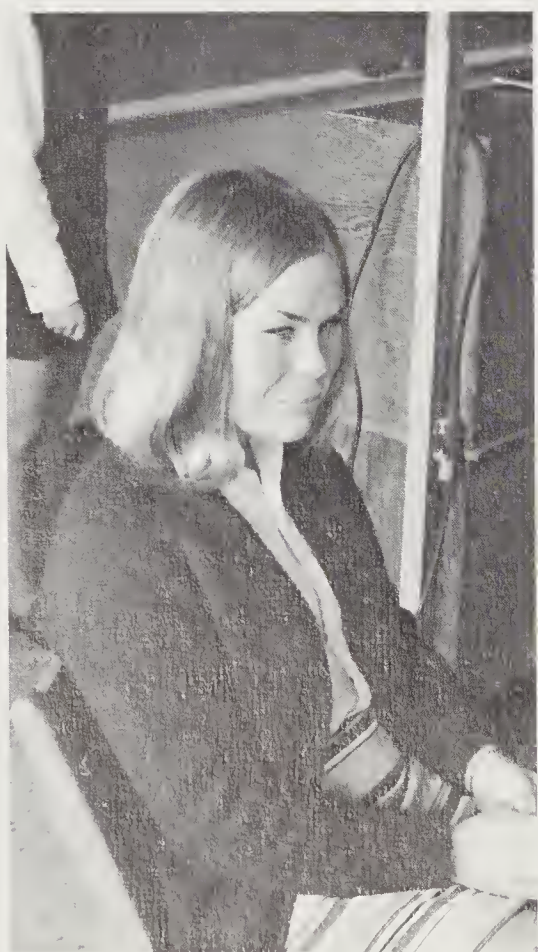

Foreign Languages

Diversity was the basic idea in teaching French this year. As a new approach to study was taken by the new head of the French Department, students experienced a different, European way of teaching. Emphasis was on learning to speak French, but grammar and culture were also incorporated into these courses. French I acquainted students with the fundamentals of hearing and understanding French. Second year advanced this knowledge with grammar coming into focus. Third year was an extensive study in grammar and preparation for college-level French. In the small class of French IV, twelve students learned of French History and Literature, from "Chanson de Roland" to Jean-Paul Satre. For any French etudiant, it was a very enriching, worthwhile adventure.

Foreign languages

Globetrotter Mrs. Keirstead relates her experiences in France and other French-speaking countries.

Mrs. Tillinghast giggles at the pronunciation of French by a first-year student.

French III student Anita Winchester aids her teacher by running to the office to pick up French II tests.

With Joe Patton as the miser, French IV read L'Avare.

complement the learning process

Mrs. Winchester knows that finding time to relax between classes is a rare thing.

Ancient Spanish sayings were a highlight of the beginning Spanish students' course. They also delved into the basic sentence structure vital to a more complete understanding of this language. Second year pupils learned to appreciate the many facets of grammar, especially the conjugation of verbs. Preliminary oral reports prepared the students for their final exam speeches. For the students who showed promise and interest, Spanish III was a challenging classroom situation. Extensive passage translation added to the developing skills of the concerned Spanish student.

Mrs. Standley is an example that hard work and understanding make a good teacher.

Students deepen understanding

Students of Ancient History dug deep into the far reaches of man's past. Asian dynasties, and early European kingdoms were taken into careful consideration, along with the traditional study of dates and names.

Many pupils were able to learn of foreign environments and ways of life in World Geography. This particular course held forth the similarities that link the various races together as well as the differences that tend to separate them.

General knowledge of the complexities of the human mind was gained by the pupils who took Psychology. Study from text and outside resources was done on a variety of subjects including man's emotions, his instincts, and his patterns of behavior.

Mrs. Capps displays the artwork of one of her students in Ancient History class.

Mrs. Bishop, have you ever had the feeling that someone is watching you?

Mrs. Quick thinks over the problems of today's student.

Students analyze 1970

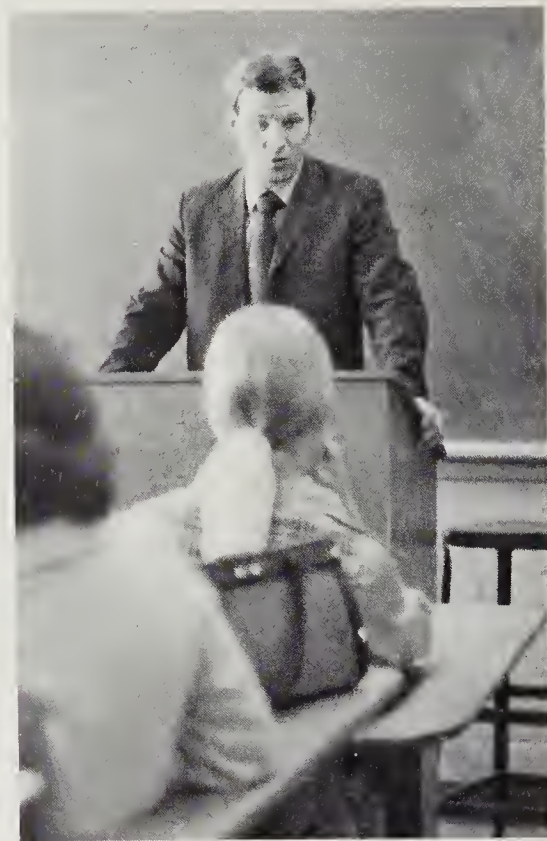

As the sands of 1970 slid away, students of history discussed events and the reasons behind these events. Problems of Democracy, a senior course, was especially concerned with national news. American History noticed the national news but were interested by the influence of the international news front.

As blacks made advances in regaining civil rights, a new course about Afro-American History was installed. Latin American History was for students with special interest in Spanish cultures and our neighboring Americans.

As the present became the past, BHS historians became involved and concerned with social studies.

Mrs. Coan teaches with a flair.

Mr. Barker tells about Bull Run "and the South commenced to romp upon the North."

Happiness is equality.

Searching for a fact to support her statement about the Constitution, Mrs. Coan looks everywhere.

BHS storehouse of knowledge

Mrs. Jean Southerland acts as a modern day Cerebus for our precious storage of ever-accumulating knowledge.

Another guardian of the source of knowledge, Mrs. Galloway, head librarian, solemnly performs her sacred task.

Bobby Rhyne finds work easier in the quiet, undisturbed atmosphere of the library.

Books are the records of all knowledge. Without libraries there would be no place to store this knowledge. An efficient, well-organized library speeds up and aids the process of learning. The BHS library was a prime example of such organization. Not only books but movie and film projectors, tape recorders and record players supplemented the daily teaching task.

In addition to the regular hours, the National Honor Society succeeded in opening the library for a few hours on Monday and Thursday nights. With these extra hours, the job the library had to do was made easier.

Mrs. Norville patiently works at her job as assistant librarian, to keep things going smoothly.

Mary Zeigler masters the art of using the card catalogue.

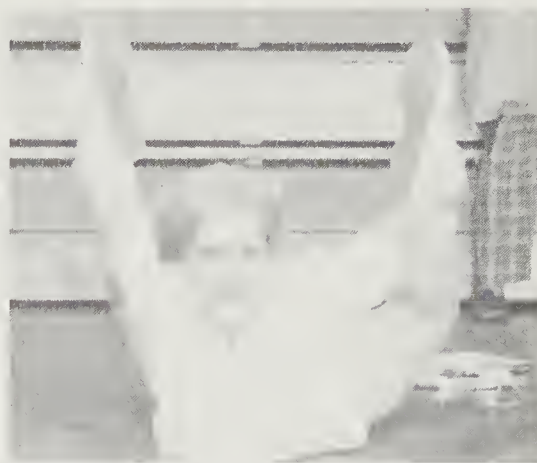

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Students develop skills and teamwork

Put a ball, a coach, and a young boy or girl together and you have the makings for lots of sweat and a good deal of fun. This is generally what Physical Education classes were set up to do.

Advanced Phys. Ed. pupils came to understand such activities as gymnastics and some of the more technical sides of football, basketball, and softball.

Freshmen alternated activity periods with class time in which Health was taught.

DRIVERS' EDUCATION

Drivers learn safety through experience

Driver's Education classes differ from others in that it presents practical ideas and knowledge which must be used in the near future of those students enrolled in the course.

In the classroom, pupils were the statistical and legal portion of the course. Importance of attitude while driving was stressed. On the road, young pre-licensee's learned how to drive a car safely and skillfully.

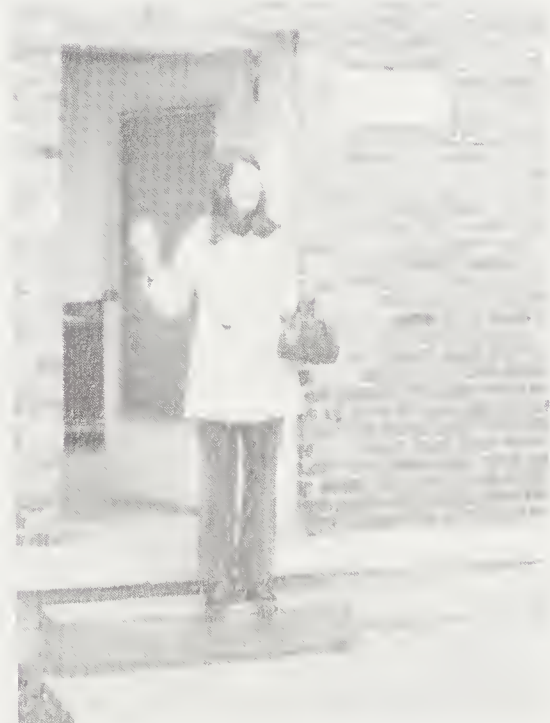

Coach Johnson and Driver's Ed students are familiar sights around Brevard.

Homemaking takes on new aspects

Homemaking and food and clothing careers are important to the well-being of our nation. Without them, our most essential needs would be inadequately provided for. Preparation for these fields of work is an important job, it was well-done at BHS. Introductory Home Ec, Advanced Home Ec, Advanced Foods, Advanced Clothing, Family Life and Interpersonal Relationships were the courses offered to further training of students interested in knowledge they would surely use.

Practical knowledge was what the students wanted and the Home Ec. Department gave it to them.

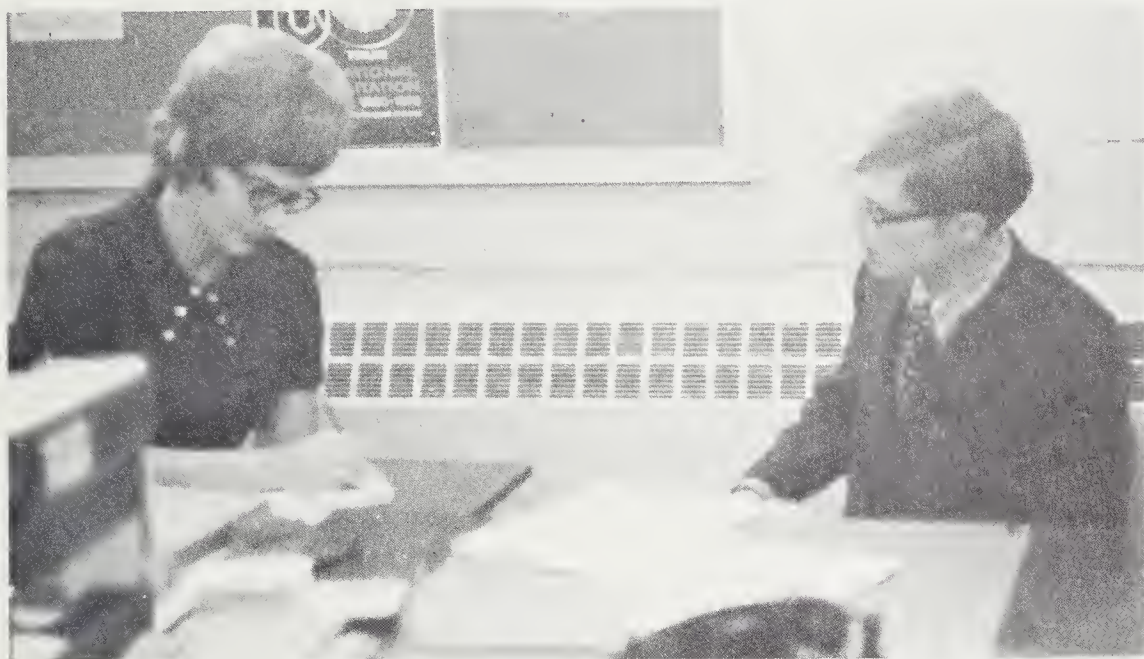

Mrs. McGinnis demonstrates her skill as a seamstress.

"You did what to my dress?" Jean Whitsun laughingly asks.

"The correct centerpiece should be just this height," instructs Mrs. Burrell.

Resource learning: a new concept

Mr. Owens, head of Vocational Rehabilitations, dictates a very important letter to his secretary, Mrs. Vaughn.

Students in Resource Learning showed evidence of steady progress this year under the guidance of Mr. Charles Strigo and Mrs. Christine Williams.

English and Reading helped these pupils in learning to communicate well with others by various means. Mathematics taught them to use their powers of reason and deduction effectively. Discussions in Art and Music served to give each student a well-rounded education that will prove to be essential in future years.

Mrs. Williams is engaged in an explanation of the reading kit.

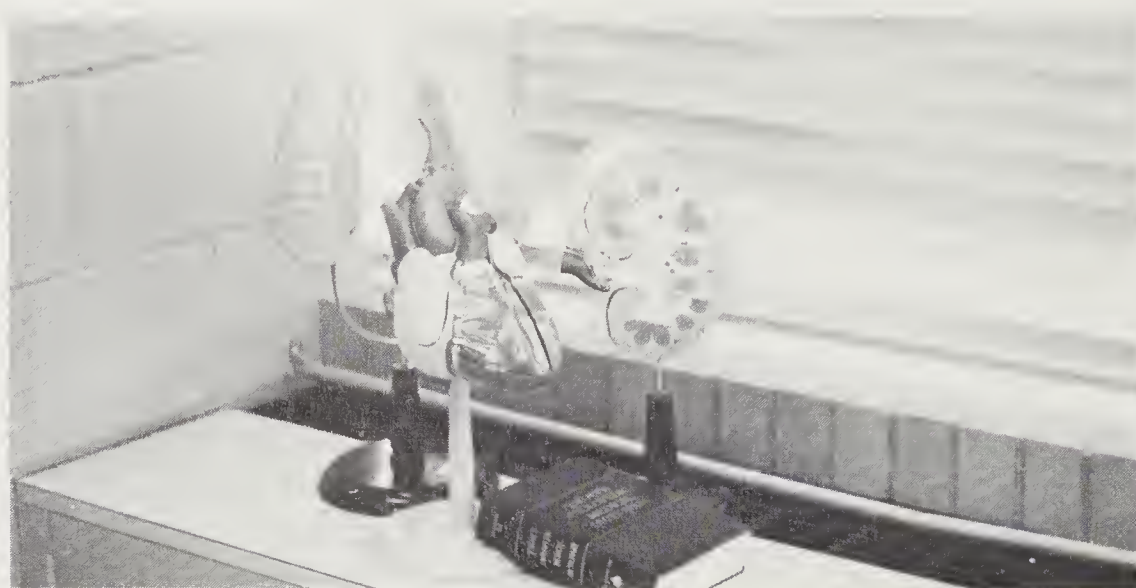

Coach Strigo assists a student in pouring the paint for the fieldhouse.

Students learn medical techniques

Mrs. Balding taught this course to girls who are interested in the nursing profession.

Medical techniques were studied as well as causes and treatment of a variety of the common diseases that affect us. In relation to this, the girls also learned about the complexities of the body's systems and physiology.

Second year H.O. students used their knowledge in work at the Transylvania County Hospital. This learning through participation proved to be a valuable experience for those who were able to take part in the program.

Learning the parts of the body is an essential part of H.O. class.

Mrs. Balding finds administrative work plays an important part in nursing.

Miss Chase is a regular patient in H.O. class.

Two new teachers in Business Department

Mrs. Owen enjoys her first year at Brevard High.

Everything improves with change and the Brevard High Business Department was no exception in the '70-'71 school year. Bringing fresh ideas and teaching methods into the typing and shorthand classes were two new teachers under the guidance of Mrs. Leinster. Bookkeeping, Basic Law and Basic Business classes also saw new teachers for these applied knowledge courses. They approached and fulfilled these tasks with skill and patience.

In the vocational department students performed outside work to accomplish their goals. Pupils in these fields learned by participation in DE and ICT.

Students learn skills for

It isn't every high school student that has either the desire or the ability to continue onto higher education. For these young men in particular, the vocations program in skilled labor is the answer to the problem.

Under the guidance and able tutorship of Messrs. Osborne, Williams, Edwards, Flynn and Bradley, pupils entered such fields as brick-laying, carpentry, and agriculture.

Whereas classes in more of an academic field might prove almost useless to these boys, courses that taught them practical knowledge served to assure them solid positions of employment after graduation.

replaces obsolete homeroom representation

Brevard High School continued its progress in greater meaning of education thanks to the Student Council Body Representatives. Several new ideas were brought into practice.

Precinct voting replaced the obsolete homeroom representation method. School clubs and organizations became active since the centralization of their charters into the Student Council. These are among the several ideas that helped to update student freedom and responsibility.

Awareness of the students' social and community life was displayed by Student Council. Such projects as Homecoming Week, postgame soc-hops, and again the collection of more than 1,000 cans of fruit for the Brevard Christmas House were successfully completed.

Student body president, Rick Bohan shares and enjoys something humorous with another council member, Randy Frisbee.

NHS officers make plans for induction ceremony

Brevard High's National Honor Society completed several projects this year thus ending a series of inactive terms in the past.

A primary concern for the club was the opening of the library on Monday and Thursday nights. Though the extra library hours brought few students back to school at night this year, the opportunity promises to be an important one in the future.

Organization members also endeavored to return to the practice of printing honor rolls in the Broadcaster to the school, so that deserving students could be acknowledged. An attempt to have special gold seals placed on NHS members' diplomas was made.

The largest activity was the establishment of a scholarship fund to be awarded to a deserving student from Brevard High in the future.

A wide variety of activities filled the calendar for the Key Club this year. After a two year period of relative inactivity, the organization began to move this fall with the election of officers and initiation of new members.

Delegates who attended the District Workshop at Erwin High School brought back useful ideas which were incorporated into the club program.

Money-raising projects were carried out effectively throughout the year. Raking leaves, car washes, car smashes, and bake sales all helped to keep the club's treasury stable.

School and community projects are the primary interest of the Key Club. This year the organization served the Christmas House by collecting cans of food for its use.

Deserving athletes recognized

Coach Emory passes out the new jackets to Varsity lettermen. These jackets are awarded to those who have completed two consecutive seasons of a sport and all senior athletes on the recommendation of their coaches.

Sponsored by Athletic Director Ed Emory, the Varsity Club held officer elections last December as were new member initiations. These club members set for themselves several goals to be reached as the year progressed.

Principle objectives set up by the group included the promotion of a high standard of athletics in the school and the recognition of any deserving participant in inter-scholastic sports.

Brevard High School's Varsity Club proved once again that it is an able channel of service and communication for our athletes.

Kathie Shipman, accompanist, serves FCA regularly by playing beautiful melodies each Friday morning.

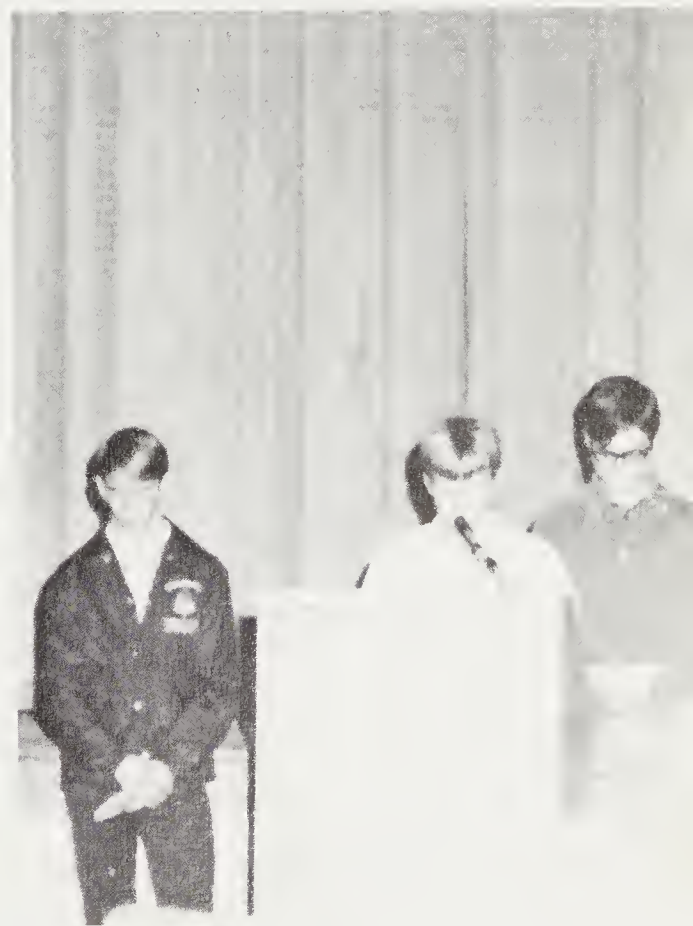

Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Brevard High's Fellowship of Christian Athletes was, for the second year, affiliated with the national organization.

Through attendance by those interested persons, FCA offered students a short moment of religious reflection during the week. President Phil Hudson was responsible for obtaining a new program for each of the Friday morning meetings.

Better attendance and a wider program of activities are two goals that the FCA hopes to achieve next year.

Officers Phil Hudson, Stan Hudson, and John Bohan lead the group in scripture reading, devotions, and prayer.

maintains school spirit

The Booster Club continued to contribute spirit to our school through the avid participation of its members. Bright posters helped everyone to get into the right spirit for the night's football game. And the enthusiasm was evident right on through basketball season as the Booster Club conducted pep rallies and sponsored soc-hops.

Of course the highlight of the year for the organization was the annually held Sweetheart Ball.

Other activities, including the selling of ribbons and Blue Devil posters, were carried out successfully by the members, many of whom will be returning next year. Too, it is evident that next year will be replete with the spirit that the Booster Club instills in our school.

BHS students reach out

Health Occupations students engaged themselves in many and various activities.

As the school year began, members planned and held bake sales, candy apple sales, and rummage sales in order to increase treasury funds.

During the holiday season the group helped some of the underprivileged families of the community with gifts of toys, clothes, and food. At the Easter season, boxes of food were sent to Transylvanians serving in Vietnam.

National VICA Week was held in March and the organization competed in both the district and state contests held this spring.

Students in the Industrial Co-operative Training program received valuable on-the-job training in several fields. Working an average of twenty hours a week, club members learned a great deal about earning a future living.

In addition, ICT carried out several annual projects for the club and community. Delegates attended both the Regional and State Leadership Conference as well as participating in these area contests. For the benefit of the Brevard Organization itself, and ICT picnic and the spring Employer-Employee Banquet were held and attended by all members.

Steve Blythe, president, through Distributive Education worked during school hours at the Community Cash.

For some students, knowledge of the business world that they will soon enter is quite important. To these young people, the BHS chapter of the Distributive Education Clubs of America offered many opportunities in gaining skills in fields concerning salesmanship, marketing, advertising, and public speaking.

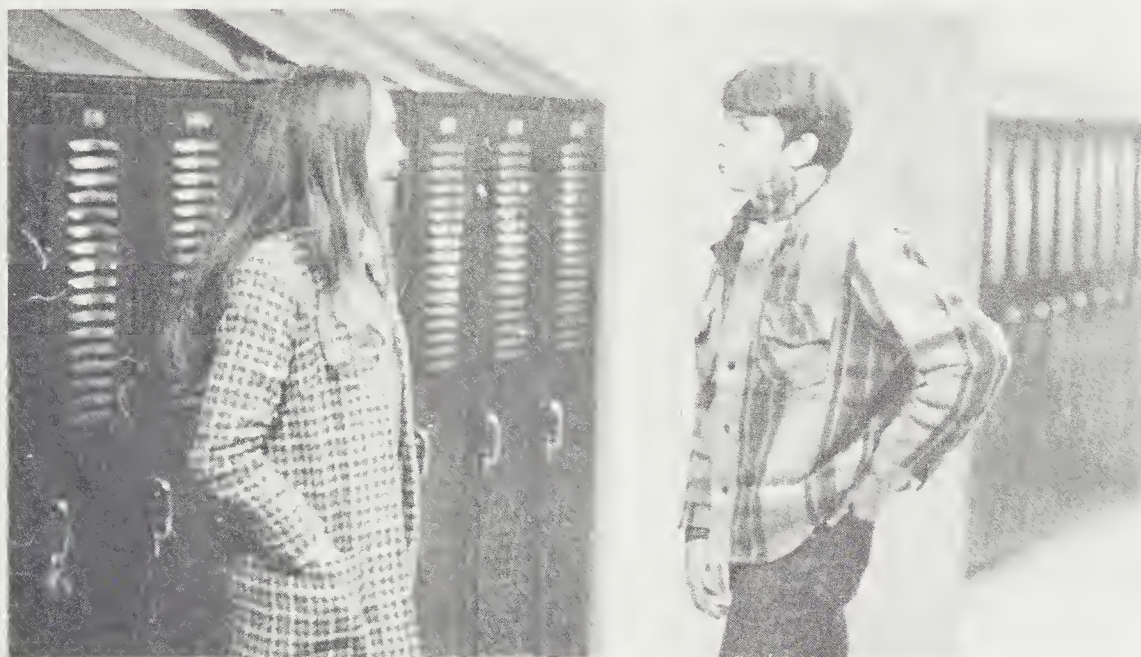

Activities were undertaken which would enable club members to participate in the learning processes. In November, two students were entered into the Job Interview and Miss DECA Contests at the District Convention. Competition in various fields was held in February at the District Leadership Contest. The organizational year climaxed with an Employer-Employee Banquet held this spring.

BUS DRIVERS

Bus drivers have difficult jobs

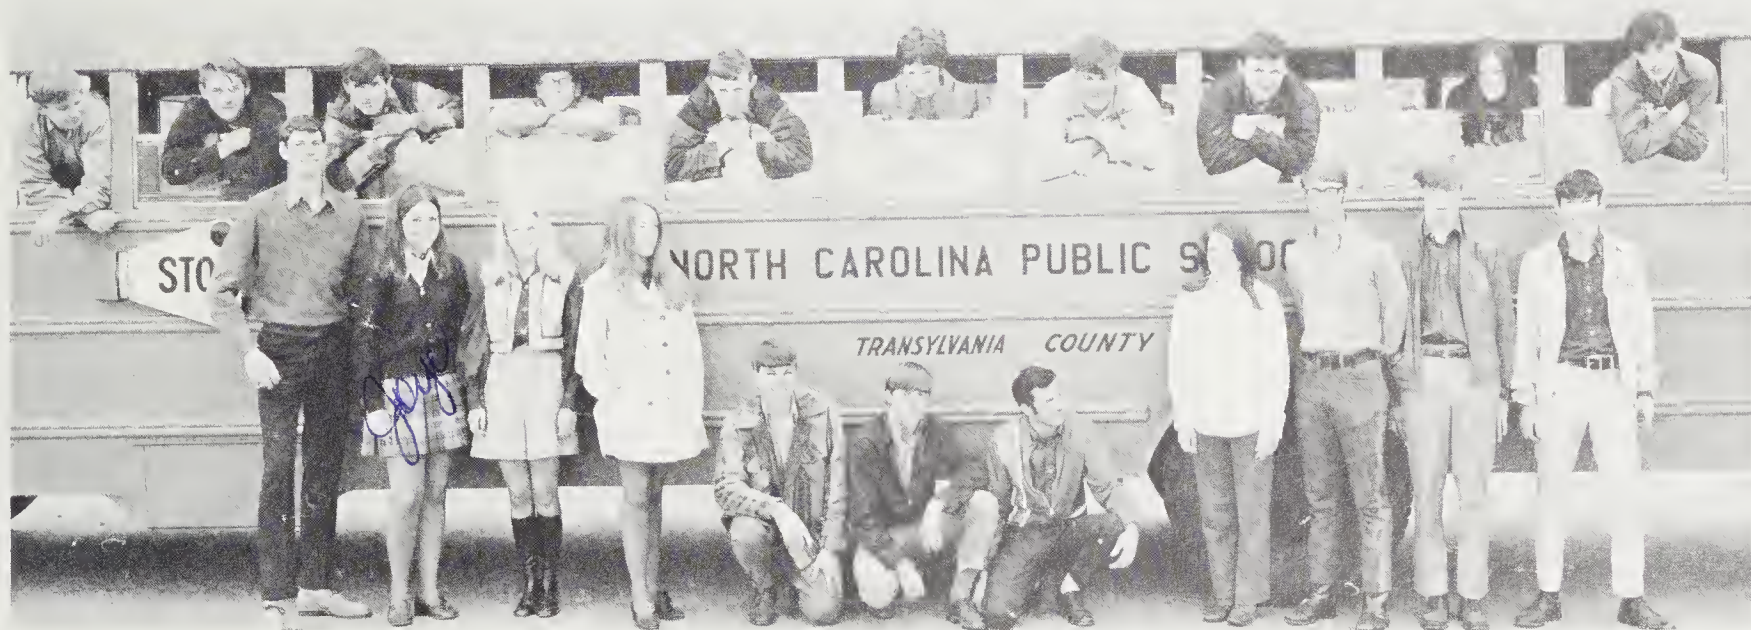

Sonya Rogers and Eddie Bryson find some extra time before the bell rings.

Perhaps one of the most valuable services to our school is performed by the bus drivers. For it is this group that assures that the majority of students attend classes each day.

It is not necessary to repeat here the duties and responsibilities of the average bus driver. However, several aspects of the job were not the same. The fact that children rode county buses in increasing numbers presented a variety of problems. At times the weather seemed to side against these students, for a while there were frequent cold mornings which caused starting and handling problems.

Otherwise, the bus driver's daily routine was little changed during the year. Nevertheless, they performed their tasks well and were appreciated by everyone.

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA

Members cultivate interest in domestic arts

The Future Homemakers of America is an organizational offspring from the Home Economics classes. The Brevard chapter is a large one since most Home Economics students are FHA members. Attempting to cultivate an active pursuit of the domestic arts and promote their practice in the home, was one of its major objectives.

The club enthusiastically carried out many social events and community service projects under the direction of President Joyce Landreth, Mrs. McGinnis, and Mrs. Burrell. These projects included preparing hot dogs which were sold at home football games, serving as waitresses for banquets, the FHA Christmas party, and the annually held FFA-FHA picnic.

Gwen Mooney, Bobbie Elliot, Joyce Landreth, and Mrs. McGinnis make plans for the Christmas Party.

Pat Holden, Mary Rhinehart, and Kaye Orr prepare chili and onions to garnish hot dogs to be sold at a football game.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

Agricultural abilities used in many worthy projects

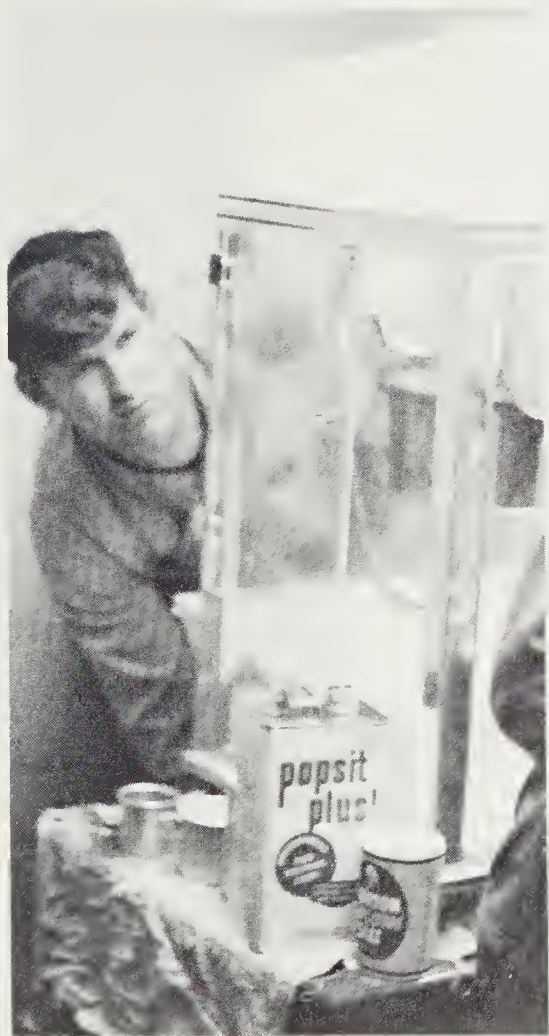

Future Farmers of America.

It takes a general knowledge of a wide variety of skills to enable one to become a successful farmer. To give young men a chance to gain this knowledge is the objective of the Future Farmers of America.

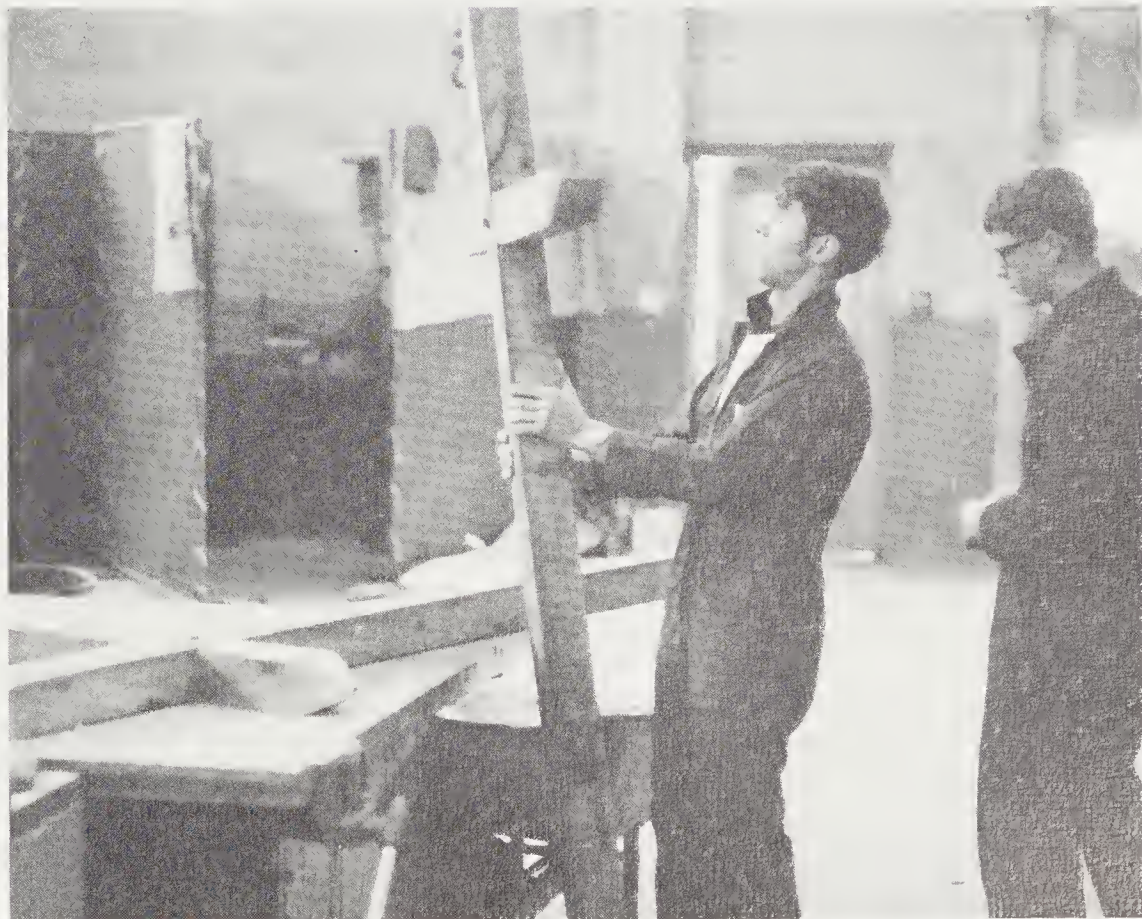

In developing their talents, members in Brevard's FFA chapter carried out various relevant projects. These included the raising of thirteen head of cattle and a nursery project in which several types of ornamental shrubs were cultivated and grown.

Delegates from our local chapter were sent to compete in public speaking, parliamentary procedure, land judging, tool identification, and livestock judging contests on the District and State levels.

Social activities were another important part of the organization's calendar. The annual Parent-Son Banquet was a success as was the FFA-FHA picnic.

Henry Blackwell, a member involved in FFA's activities, makes popcorn which is sold at the concession stands at the home basketball games.

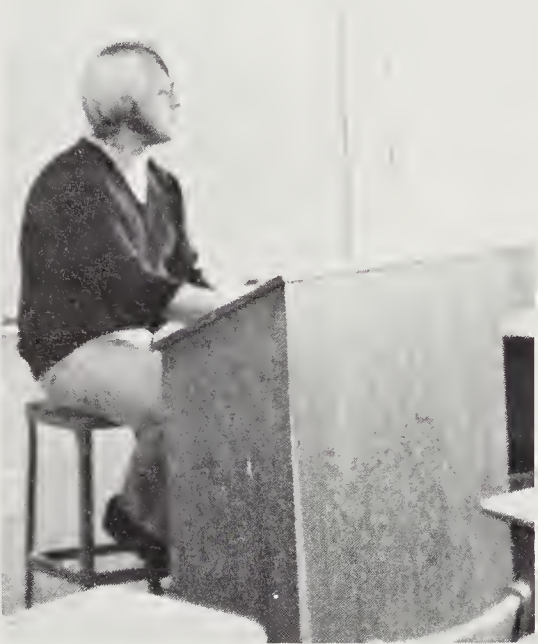

Clinton Fisher, president, and Frank Rogers, vice president, put the finishing touches on the mail-box posts they constructed.

FUTURE TEACHERS OF AMERICA

Students further their interests in teaching

Created for all seniors who aspired to the teaching profession, FTA offered invaluable information to those students planning to enter this career.

Led by Keith Davis, president, and sponsors Mrs. Abercrombie and Mrs. Lathrop, the club secured a variety of speakers who lectured at several of the regularly held meetings. Of the projects the group undertook, the foremost was a tutorial program designed to aid students on the elementary and junior high school levels. Those members who wished to practice teaching were given a chance to test their abilities by taking over a class while the teachers observed.

FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS OF AMERICA

Business students become affiliated with national chapter

Brevard High's newest club, the Future Business Leaders of America, was given its official charter in January of this year. The document was presented to President Joyce Rahn by The Enka FBLA in a student body assembly. The official installation of officers and initiation of members was also held during this assembly.

The local chapter was made up entirely of girls in business and office occupations curricula. It held as its objective to further the skills and knowledge of responsibilities which will be essential if the members are to succeed in future business practices.

Several members rehearse a pep rally skit to be presented before the student body on the day of a big game.

RADIO CLUB

Interests in electronics are expanded

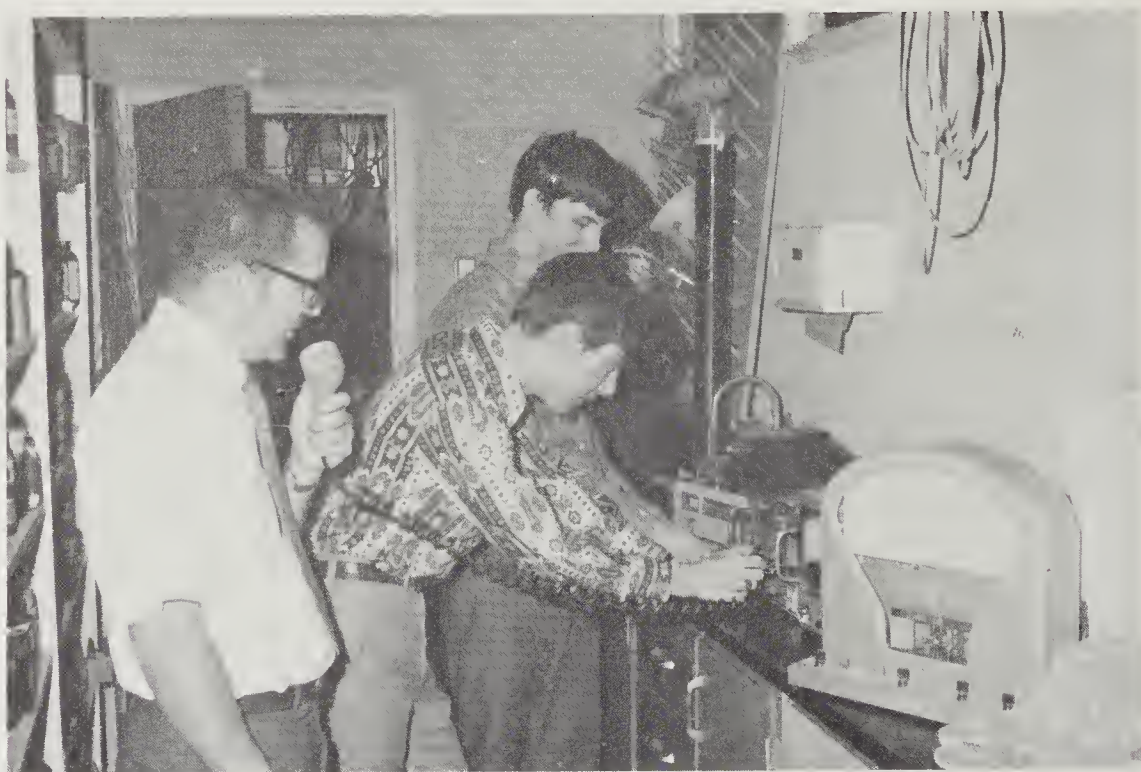

An organization established for those with an interest in electronics, the Radio Club, offered each member a chance to learn more about this contemporary field.

The telegraphic alphabet, or Morse Code, was learned by each member. The goal toward which each worked was the attainment of his own amateur radio operator's license.

Just one of their many worthwhile projects, repairing items, absorbed much of their time.

Though claiming a small membership since it was initiated, this special interest club's rolls will grow as its full value is realized.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE CLUBS

Members of the Spanish Club.

Brevard High's curriculum holds two foreign language courses and from each comes the interest which is directed into a respective club.

The French Club made an outstanding effort to establish itself as one of the most active clubs at BHS. Under the leadership of Dana Patterson, president, the group performed skits at two pep rallies, took a field trip to Western Carolina to a lecture by a French count, and held various fund-raising projects to help pay for their trip to the French Embassy in Washington, D.C. In addition to these activities, the club donated a plaque to the school in memory of Mr. Photiades.

This group succeeded in their attempt to heighten interest in French culture and further insight into the background of French speaking people.

The Spanish Club held business and social meetings at the First Citizens Bank in Brevard. In January, the club had a supper for the purpose of business and to taste a Spanish dish. In conjunction with the club's activities, the annually held spring field trip was enjoyed by those who attended.

challenge diligent workers

The production of this annual was accomplished in spite of several unusual challenges which emerged in addition to the traditional problems. Keys Printing Company, publisher of last year's volume, was relieved of its contract in favor of Delmar Printing Corporation. This move, as any big change will, brought about its own sort of disadvantages as well as advantages.

The largest responsibility fell on the new sponsor, Mrs. Leinster. Unacquainted as she was with the production of the Brevardier, Mrs. Leinster used the experience she gained guiding the procedures of another yearbook wisely and proved herself to be a highly competent director.

Not uncommon frustrations were the approaching of deadlines, the correcting of layouts, and the fitting of copy. Each staff member managed to solve these and other problems that confronted them. Together the group worked to produce a book which would relate to the students as well as please them.

New areas of journalistic involvement marked the 70-71 year for the Broadcaster staff.

Staff members focused their efforts toward the success of an important press project which lasted throughout the year. The campaign, sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, served to bring awareness of the causes and effects of pollution in the community.

Two issues of the Broadcaster were submitted to campaign officials for judgment on the basis of originality and factuality on the fight against pollution. The publication also sponsored a new club, "Students for Clean Air," whose purpose was to activate students in the anti-pollution struggle.

Reports and workers managed to participate in this while continuing their excellent performance of bringing news items of our school before the students.

Drama Club—a means of Expression

Meeting daily as a class, the Drama Club received training in speech and dramatics. The preparation of various types of speeches and good speaking technique was studied during the first semester. Throughout the remainder of the year, the students learned the history of the theater, how to perform on the stage, and enact the different types of plays through example and active participation.

With this background the group presented a pep rally skit before the Blue Devils-Tuscola football clash and staged a one act comedy at a student body assembly.

Fund-raising projects were held to pay the expenses of a spring field trip to the Greenville Dinner Theater.

CHORUS

Chorus is prominent source of BHS pride

The Chorus was comprised of thirty-seven talented students who proved to be a source of pride for our school. Under the direction and guidance of Miss G. A. Henson, the group strove toward its goal of excellence. Essential in acquiring the ability and skills needed before performing in front of an audience, the Chorus practiced daily and worked diligently.

It took the students only one performance to establish themselves as an outstanding group of singers. Several programs were presented before the student body during the year, which were enjoyed by everyone. The group's talent became apparent to others in the Choral Clinic held at Mars Hill at which four specially selected members of the Chorus represented BHS. Local parents were entertained by the club at the February PTA meeting.

Because the Chorus has demonstrated itself to be of credit to the school and community, it is hoped that future occasions will offer more opportunities for them to be heard.

outstanding performance

The Brevard High School musicians presented the school and community with another series of outstanding performances during 1970-1971. Much time, effort and sacrifice was put into preparation and performance. This was evidenced by the halftime shows last fall which combined the best of precision marching and musicianship.

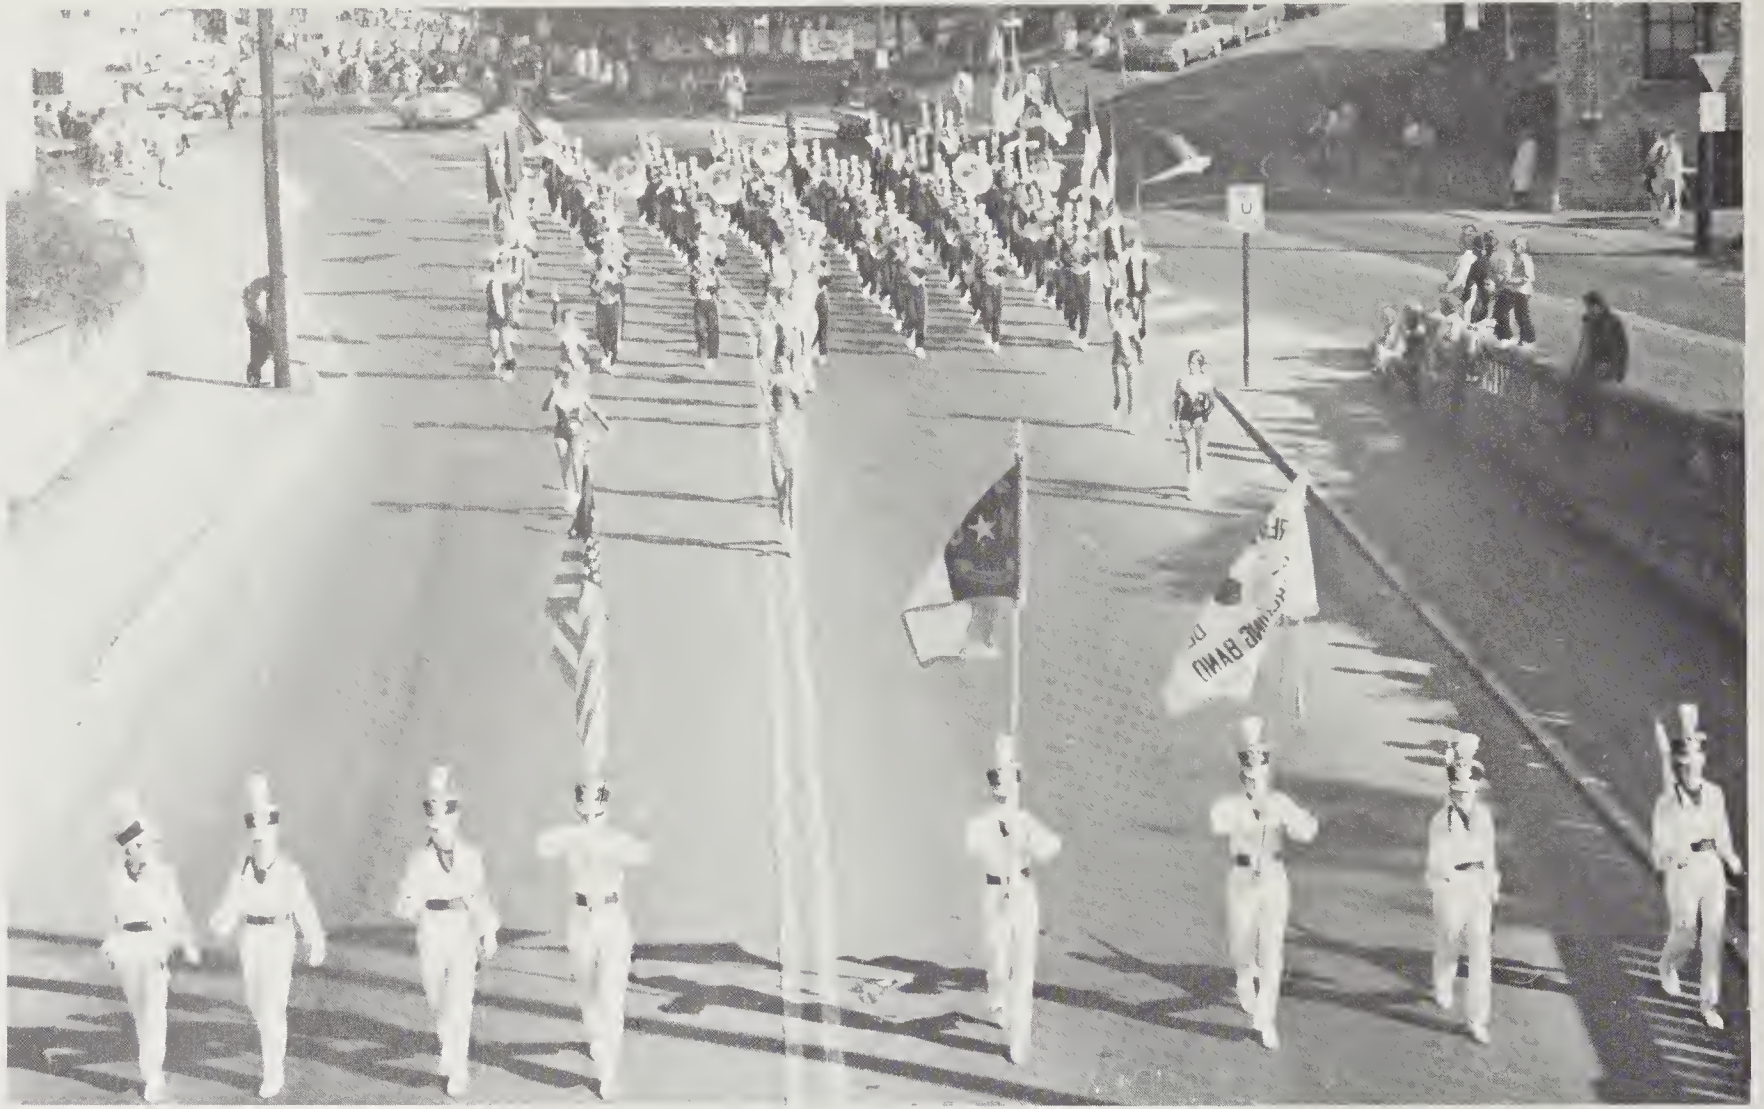

The Brevard High School Blue Devil Marching Band entered two competitions last fall: Southeastern Band Festival at Bristol, Virginia-Tennessee and the Western Carolina University Marching Band Festival at Cullowhee.

The Brevard High School Concert Band entered the state competition at Marion in Grade VI which is the most difficult classification.

The BHS Band was a vital part of the school and community. Their presentations were eagerly awaited and thoroughly enjoyed by all who saw and heard them.

The members of the BHS Band, all dedicated students of music, deserve our utmost admiration and respect. A truly super band, the cohesive organization merits our thanks.

Though suffering the loss of several fine seniors last year, the 1970 Devil squad was able to boast certain strong points from the season’s start. The most obvious asset was the determination and hustle of every player that gave the team a perfect record. Secondly was a passing attack that was unprecedented for a Brevard team coupled with a widely respected running game.

Blue Devil defense was occasionally spotty, but always came through in the clutch. The last minutes of the Tuscola and Pisgah games are good examples of the squad’s holding power.

Securing the Ivy Conference Championship, the Blue Devils entered the state playoffs and advanced to the second round after defeating a strong North Surry team 42-6. The Devil’s streak was broken by Reidsville’s Rams who went on to defeat Pisgah for the Western AAA title.

Producing pep rallies involves much extra work for the cheerleaders.

This year, as never before, the Brevard Cheerleading Squad held a high position in student affairs. Their skill and techniques on performance was surpassed only by their undaunted spirit. Of course, consistently winning teams made their primary task less difficult, but these girls did more than yell at an occasional athletic contest.

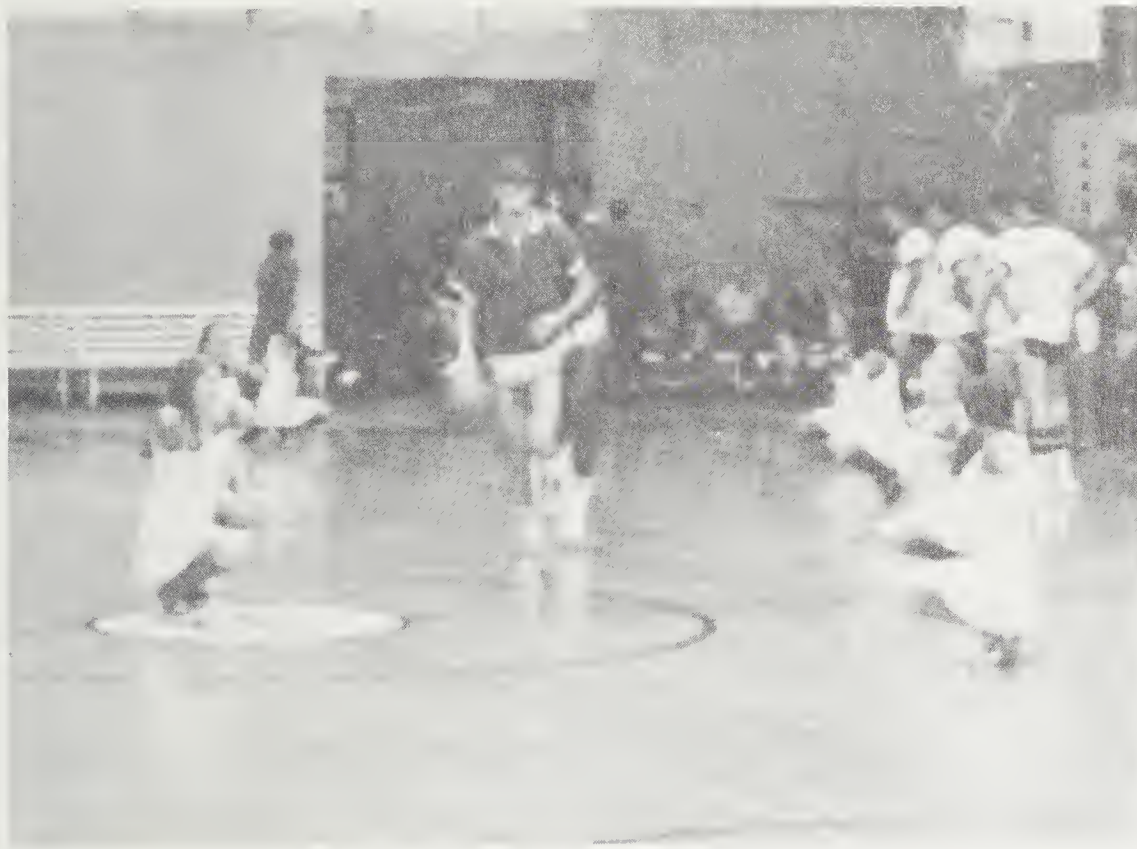

In addition to bringing us a pep rally every week, the squad boosted athletes' spirit with small showings of the whole schools appreciation. Perhaps the most memorable was the gift of a lollipop and a little note stating "Lick Em".

In the spring, the cheerleaders gave everyone trying out for a squad position an equal opportunity by carrying out a three-week training program for all novices. This unprecedented venture proved to be very successful and a credit to those "old pros" who worked to help their younger counterparts.

The many other services that our Cheerleaders rendered, such as helping organize dances, were numbered and varied. They were more than willing to lend a hand anywhere they were needed.

A good junior varsity program in any major sport is essential if there is to be a continuous supply of experienced talent to the varsity teams. Brevard High's highly successful J.V. football team is part of such a program.

Over the years the squad, sometimes referred to as the "B" team, has never been defeated in a conference game. This season was no exception as the freshmen rambled over the five conference teams on their way to another season title.

Holding a 5-2 overall record, the team was beaten only by Canton and Waynesville Jr. High Schools.

J.V. and "A" Team Cheerleaders promote spirit

These two groups of cheerleading understudies did a great deal to encourage spirit during minor sport contests. Since these games are not generally as well attended as the major varsity games, it might be said that, at times, their job was more difficult than that of the veteran cheerleaders' squad.

Eager freshmen made up the J.V. cheerleading crew. Their presence was obvious at all ninth grade basketball and football games. The members of this group are apprentices in learning to become varsity cheerleaders.

The "A" squad consisted mainly of sophomores who led the student support at J.V. basketball and "A" team football games as well as wrestling matches this year.

prove record

The season was not a complete loss for the Brevard Devilettes. They did win one more game than last year giving them the most successful season the squad has had in a long time. This may be true but a 3-17 record speaks for itself in other ways.

The team was under new management this year; that of Mrs. Marjorie Snead, whose pre-season optimism was undaunted by the several losses that the girls sustained.

Next year could be better for the Devilettes since there were several promising underclassmen on the courts this past season.

Ivy Conference champs

For the first time in many years, the Brevard cagers were undefeated in conference play; a record which gave them the conference title. Completing a 16-4 record, the Blue Devils displayed particularly fine competence on the court this year.

Individual talent played an important part in each victory but a greater team effort than has been seen in the past was evident this year. In addition, Coach Owenby, by common agreement, did a superb job in training the squad for competition. His fine coaching is a great part of the reason for the team's winning season.

After capturing the conference trophy, the Blue Devils entered into the first round of the state playoffs.

Underclassmen cagers gain experience

Compiling a 15-5 record, the J. V. squad completed another successful year. Coached by Bill Lowe, these sophomores trained hard all season in order to come up with the fine season that they had. The Junior Varsity starters should be valuable additions to the Varsity squad during the next two seasons.

Even though the freshman team could not boast such a fine record, experience and a great deal of practice should show much improvement by next year. The team was at a decided height disadvantage, an important factor in most of the squad's defeats. The cagers ended their season with 4 wins against 9 losses.

8-5 record

John Bohan gets a quick take-down.

The loss of several particularly skilled seniors was noticeable to the wrestling team, but the squad managed to hold its own in what could be termed as a "rebuilding year." Turning in an 8-5 record, the team was helped by several fine individual performances and a somewhat easier schedule than it has known in the past.

However, only one team defeated the Blue Devils by more than a narrow margin, while most of their wins came as a result of leads amounting to as much as forty points.

Next year's squad will look essentially the same, with the addition of several talented underclassmen.

John Bohan gets the upper hand.

The 1971 golf team's roster consisted entirely of underclassmen. Despite this disadvantage, the squad was expected to finish another fine season due to the non-interscholastic experience of each team member.

Coached by Mr. Jim Johnson, this group competed against most of the other teams in the area. Home matches were played at the beautiful Glen Cannon Country Club, while other country clubs hosted the Brevard Team at away matches.

The Brevard High Golfers are expected to have a particularly fine season in 1972, since seniors will form a large percentage of the team. With good training and constant practice, the squad should be able to claim the Ivy Conference Title both this season and next year.

Track team captures

The 1970 track team captured the conference title after a long losing streak. Outstanding performances by a large number of individuals on the track and in the field enabled the squad to place well in all its meets as well as beating out Enka, a perennial track power, for first place in the Class II division of the sectionals.

Recruiting and coaching went a long way toward making Brevard a track power. Head Coach, Ed Emory was able to get the best performance possible from each competitor, a fact shown by the records broken by the team.

Losing only a few seniors, the squad looks forward to another conference title in '71.

Under the guidance of the new coach, Craig Fogleman, the 1970 baseball team spent many long hours striving for perfection.

The team was young and the season got off to a slow start. But their losses did not dampen the boys' spirit. They regarded each game as being a lesson of valuable experience.

Many of last years players will be returning to the line-up and Coach Fogleman looks forward to a successful season in the spring of 1971.

CLASSES

The class of '71

Twelve years is a long time to anything, but 219 seniors stuck it out in order to finish the first phase of their education.

Every senior has spent four years in high school but never has the class as a whole accomplished as much as it did during '70-'71.

Seniors showed outstanding talent in the academic fields. This fact was exemplified by the many scholarships and the quality of higher education most plan to obtain.

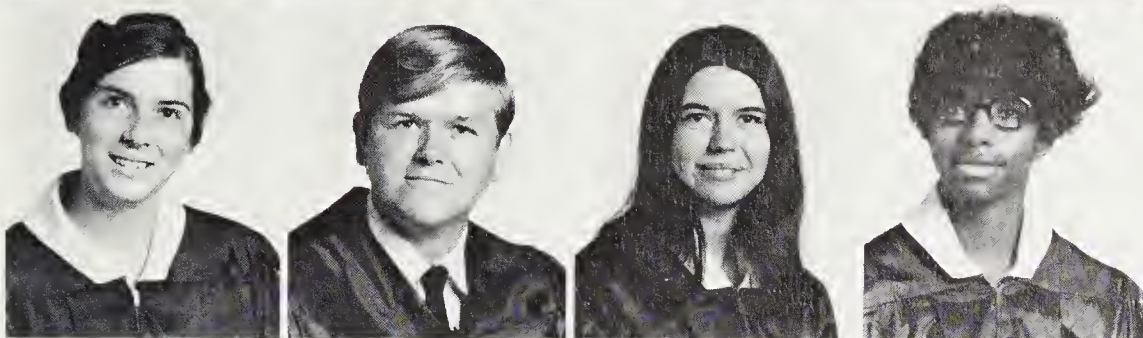

Extracurricular activities took a very important part in the life of the senior. Many considered their Homecoming float to be the best ever produced by the class. School organizations became more active thanks to Super Senior leadership.

Juniors take a step

This year, "1970-1971", Juniors found themselves caught up in the spirited activities of Brevard High more than ever before.

Advanced courses in most subjects challenged the minds and patience of many juniors. Others discovered new fields of knowledge in fresh courses such as Zoology and Botany.

Extra-curricular activities found an avid participator in the juniors. The Junior Play, the Junior-Senior Prom, and the Homecoming Float are only three of the many successful projects backed by the Class of '72. Juniors were also essential in the completion of the Sweetheart Ball, and of course, selection of their rings. Junior athletes proved to be outstanding and should form the backbone of our devastating team next year.

Sophomores

Changing their pace, Sophomores

Sophomores showed that they were able to tolerate the bump and grind of high school life by making themselves a part of its activities.

All interscholastic sports profited by the enthusiastic participation of many sophomores. Likewise, tenth graders enriched the clubs and organizations our school has.

Highlighted by a first place homecoming float, the sophomores' year consisted of a variety of activities. Driver's Education and Biology were new but not always welcome experiences for the Class of '73. Other academic endeavors included the detailed study of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

Sophomores accomplished many objectives this year. Their active participation in school life helped their school as well as their own class. The lessons they learned and the experience they gained will not soon be forgotten. This newfound knowledge will certainly prepare the sophomores for even greater involvement next year.

Sophomores Cindy Bellefeuil and Sandy Beard work on the class float.

Freshmen are pleased

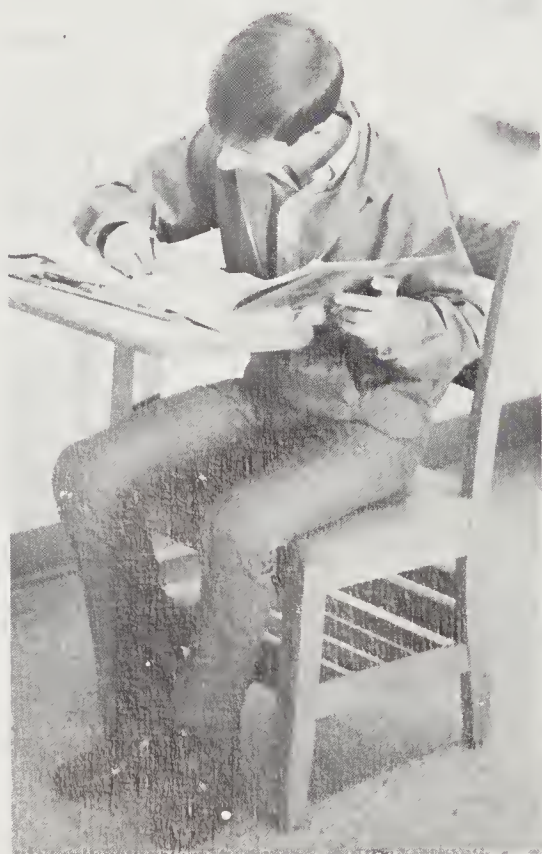

Most freshmen apparently went through their first high school year unscathed. For the large percentage of these underclassmen, it was an exciting year replete with new experiences.

New academic opportunities proved a challenge as freshmen took courses in languages, science, and mathematics.

Freshmen athletes showed great promise in almost all sports. These young men and ladies gained knowledge in competition that will be essential to our school's teams later on.

Extracurricular activities found the Freshmen avid participators.

Obviously the past year has been an active one for these underclassmen.

The Times They Are A-Changin'

Come gather 'round people, wherever you roam
And admit that the waters around you have grown And accept it that soon you'll be drenched to the bone
If your time to you is worth savin'
Then you better start swimmin' or you'll sink like a stone
For the times they are a-changin'!

Come writers and critics who prophesies with your pen
And keep your eyes wide,
the chance won't come again.
And don't speak too soon for the wheel's still in spin
And there's no tellin' who that it's namin'
For the loser now will later to win
For the times they are a-changin'!

Come mothers and fathers,
throughout the land
And don't criticize what you can't understand.
Your sons and your daughters are beyond your command
Your old road is rapidly
agin'
Please get out of the new one if you can't lend your hand
For the times they are a-changin'!

Come senators, congressmen, please heed the call.
Don't stand in the doorway, don't block up the hall
For he that gets hurt
will be he who stalled.
There's a battle outside and it's ragin' It'll soon shake your window and rattle your walls
For the times they are a-changin'!

The line it is drawn,
the curse it is cast
The slow one now will later be fast.
As the present now will later be past
The order is rapidly fad-in'
And the first one now will later be last
For the times they are a-
changin'!

Dear Sarah,
I can't tell you how much I love you ship has been the best this year. All of the things we have done for others with Winnie & Lynda have really made me feel at home. Constance lotion or being chief marshal It's really couldn't have happened to a better or more qualified person.
Remember I wish you the best of every sometime years to come.
next year and in the years to come.

Love you,
Grace

Sara,

If you could ever forget wild Day's class it would be a miracle. Don't forget the great times we had in there and Joan's class.

You're a real sweet girl and I wish you luck.

Peace

P.S. DOD POWKE! Robby

Sara,

This has really been a great year!! PTL! I sure hope I can get in to Chapel Hill so we can be roommates.
Always remember the fun & great times we've shared together!!
Best of luck always!!

Love,
Winne

I'm a nice girl and good friend. I can't believe some of your scores, grades etc. Good luck with Chapel Hill and in the future.

P.S.

TO A GREAT GIRL WHOSE SCORES ON SAT ETC. MUST NEED REVISION.
GREAT LUCK IN THE FUTURE AND HAVE A GREAT SUMMER.

The Reason

I hope the "hot dates" haven't been too much for you. Don't forget the C.D.M.H.S. Have fun this summer (stereotype)

Ricky Adams

How could you ever stand to go back to RHA. Don't let her see this. J. M.

Sara,

Best of luck always
to a real sweet girl.

Remember all our great times in band & English.
May you always have the best life has to offer.
Be good this summer.

Love,
Jax

Sarah has been one of the greatest years of my life - for more reasons than one!! Don't ever forget the great times we've had together!! I'll write this summer. Stay the great person you maybe we can go
next year HA! HA!
"PT

Sara,
you a great girl
and I'm glad I know
you. I'm quitting the Band just so you can be 1st chair.
(just kidding) Best of luck

Love

Mark
